

False Heroes

by Bona Rae Villarta (June 9, 2011)

There are heroes that should remain as such
They did well for the area they served in
Or did something positive to improve
The conditions or spirit in their area.

But some officials, governments or people
Choose to think of heroes
Who had done more bad than good
But they rever them in some way
According to their own principles.

Why do this?
Because they are examples to follow,
According to them.
But ask the private or foreign sectors
And they tell you otherwise.

A hero should influence the way
So that young people look up to them
What if the hero is actually bad?
Something negative becomes of them.
