

Family Tree

by Bona Rae Villarta (June 14, 2011)

To find our past,
We have to dig our roots,
Sometimes as deep as we can get
To get at the very piece
That we are looking for.

But it's not that easy
Sometimes we encounter roadblocks along the way
Nevertheless, every step is worth it
For the information is invaluable and sentimental.

But why do most people do not share their roots to the world?
Are there secrets that they still guard to this day?
Or perhaps they chose not to?
I believe this isn't a good thing to do.

Especially nowadays, cultures are scattered all over the world
All the more, the information is very valuable
But when can people openly share their roots
So that unity is understood?
