

House of Cards

by Bona Rae Villarta (April 21, 2011)

The table is set
The cards are shuffled
It is time to build
A work of art.

While many fail to build a stable one
Others build on it successfully
And many could only build something simple
Some could build masterpieces such as this.

Building this takes time, patience and skill
Since this is a complex strategy
Many fail to even try it
While others have the abilities,
Most of us don't have all of that to build.

This is of whether gravity can hold on to it
Or can the wind topple them all over?
Be that or not, a house of cards
At least to the one who dreams of it.
