

Why I Love to Live Like the Upper Class

by Bona Rae Villarta (October 2010)

They are lucky to have the money to spend on everything
Like tuition, books, club memberships, and cars
But my family only tries to live like them, we don't really have the money.

Everyone wants to live like the upper class at some point in their lives
But not all succeed and even some fall from the class
While those that rise and level up try hard to stay that way
What about those that have been there for a long time?

They occupy the most exclusive streets, places, subdivisions, and schools of the country
Some also play a role in society, government and business
No matter how they work, they work hard to stay that way.

They know sports that the masses don't know such as soccer, polo, golf and more
And they like to spend their time in malls, at work, in civic organizations, or in good causes
They like to be on the news or be famous in some way
But some are always in the news, and they either like or dislike that treatment.

I have been siding with the upper class for a long time
I've been in upper class malls, exclusive subdivisions and condos, and also exclusive schools
But I didn't spend a long time with any of them.

But I always crave for more, more, more
Though we compromise on some things
We must stick to our plans
So that we will all succeed.

Want more poems like this? Visit <http://sites.google.com/site/bonarae/> for more.